

AMT Annual Conference on tour

Robert Libbey

Ligamentous Articular Strain Techniques (LAST)

Join our 2020 international guest presenter, Robert Libbey, as he takes his AMT conference workshop on tour around Australia.

Ligamentous Articular Strain Technique is a reconceptualisation of a classical osteopathic manual technique through a biopsychosocial perspective.

These interactive workshops will provide massage therapists with evidence-informed research supporting Ligamentous Articular Strain Techniques (LAST). The workshops combine demonstration with hands-on practical application and feedback. Real case studies will be discussed.

At this workshop you will learn to:

- recognise dysfunction and subtly, simply and effectively improve the quality of life of patients
- understand how the ligamentomuscular, monosynaptic and polysynaptic reflexes contribute to biotensegral and sensory motor dysfunctions
- understand how a patient's thoughts, beliefs and behaviours contribute to the production of pro-inflammatory mediators, change the Central Nervous System and how this impacts rehabilitation
- recognise how the clinical environment, the manner in which the clinician provides treatment, and interacts and communicates with a patient affect the biotensegrity and neuropsychology of a patient
- recognise typical Ligamentous Pain Referral Patterns and understand how referred pain occurs according to the Neurophysiological Model

ABOUT THE PRESENTER

Robert Libbey has been a Registered Massage Therapist for over 25yrs, maintaining a successful practice and treating a variety of patients ranging from the general public to high level and Olympic level athletes.

Robert has taught manual therapists across Canada and internationally since 2001. He is biased towards evidence/science based practice and biologically plausible explanations, and treats from a neurocentric, biopsychosocial and biotensegral perspective. He hopes to challenge your perception of what an injury is and transform how you think about, approach and treat your clients.
